

FOUNDATION FEATURE

*Things present
things past ...*

Thanks to dedicated volunteers who are working to preserve over 100 years of our history, Harley House is now a significant heritage site that offers today's residents a peek into the past with the restoration of the first land agent's home, as well as providing a prime example of the form and style of Red River architecture. The Community Foundation is pleased to have helped to save this fine example of an early and authentic log house.

Foundation Feature is published once a month with the support of the Star and Times.
